Fennemore Craig Announces Real Estate Practice Group Chair

PHOENIX, AZ – Fennemore Craig, a leading Mountain West law firm, announced James Bond, a partner in the firm’s Phoenix office, has been appointed the new practice group chair of the firm’s real estate practice.

“Jim is a seasoned and experienced real estate transaction lawyer who relates well to clients, business leaders and opposing counsel,” said James Goodnow, president and chair of Fennemore Craig’s management committee. “We are proud to have him on our team and we congratulate Jim on his new leadership role.”

Bond represents national homebuilders, developers, investors, business owners, landlords, and tenants in a variety of matters, including property acquisition and sale; leasing of office, retail, and restaurant spaces; and Native American land transactions and development. He serves as a member of ULI NEXT and NAIOP. Bond earned his J.D. from the University of San Diego and his B.S. from Ferris State University.

Fennemore Craig’s real estate practice encompasses all aspects of real estate, from acquisition and finance, through development, leasing and sale. Our attorneys represent sellers, buyers, users, developers and redevelopers of numerous major commercial projects in the Southwest and across the country.
