MATTHEW J. SKELLY

Matthew J. Skelly is an attorney that focuses on corporate law, commercial litigation, and zoning and land use. He steers corporate strategy and finance, highlighting his ability to navigate complex legal and business landscapes. Matthew's hands-on approach in corporate governance and policy implementation underscores his capacity to address and manage legal facets essential to organizational integrity and compliance.

In litigation, Matthew has distinguished himself through his skillful management of commercial disputes. His knowledge is evident in his handling of cases through all phases, from discovery to trial and appeal. Notably, his practice has encompassed a broad spectrum of issues, including professional liability defense and various other contentious matters requiring nuanced legal acumen.

His experience in the Southwest region has equipped him with the insight needed to tackle the intricacies of local ordinances and development projects. This, combined with his recognition as a top lawyer in commercial litigation and as a promising professional in the legal community, illustrates the breadth and depth of his legal knowledge and his effectiveness as an advocate and counselor.
